

APPEAL

“On the principles of a culture of peace in the XXI century”

More than 20 years ago, through the efforts of international organizations, primarily UNESCO, and then the governments of various countries, the principles of maintaining peace in the new millennium were discussed and put into service. The result of these efforts were programs for a culture of peace and sustainable development, which involved the search for new joint approaches and solutions for their implementation. Even then it was obvious that at the universal human level, changes were taking place at their pace, anticipating understanding of what was happening.

However, the current state of the world order does not just demonstrate a departure from the trajectory of sustainable development and a focus on jointly solving many of the problems of mankind, maintaining a culture of relationships, avoiding military conflicts, but an accelerated immersion into the abyss of chaos, where money and profit dictate the rules of the game. This violates human rights in its entirety.

The threats hanging over humanity prompt us not only to express our position, but also to propose certain steps that can initiate the formation of renewed philosophical views and principles of the development of Humanity.

First of all, it is necessary to identify the task of forming a new philosophy of the culture of peace, which will be based on the knowledge of the objective laws of the development of complex systems, which are humanity and the world created by people.

The fate of new generations cannot depend on the ambitions of individual political leaders and capital. Cooperation to solve global problems is a sign of a new era.

Please support our initiative in all possible ways.
